

Homework 1 Essay - Natalee Justus

GUI stands for graphical user interface. A GUI is an application that uses graphics to help the user navigate, and is usually customizable. An example of a GUI is File Explorer on Windows.

CLI stands for command-line interface. A command-line interface is an application that only uses text for user navigating. An example of this is Command Prompt on Windows. Both have their strengths and weaknesses of usage in different situations.